COOL CANADIAN CRIME

It was a dark and stormy night. The police were out in full force because of the threat of a serious riot. County hunters from the most low key to the leather jacket and chains variety were salted through the crowd. Ever since millionaire Blackie Connor put a reward out to capture the man who murdered his daughter, every two-bit private eye -- with or without a licence to carry -- was armed to the teeth. Working a Smith and Wesson myself and had my grandfather's Bowie knife stuck in the top of my right boot. The medical examiner said the poor girl had been stabbed eighteen times -- once for every year she lived - with a Ginsu kitchen knife. The behavioral analysts said that the killer was a white male, between the ages of thirty and forty, five and six feet tall, with a high forehead. By I saw the forensic reports, a woman's body was found with a handgun. Either BAU team was wrong, or their guy had a partner -- or worse, another partner.
